<sup>2442</sup> 129. The excavators suggest that from EM II onwards the cave was used for primary burials, and consider the lack of stratigraphy in the upper layers as suggestive of disturbance by looters (Pendlebury – Pendlebury – Money Coumts 1935–1936, 14–18, 23). Betancourt notes that the finds do not support the hypothesis that the cave was looted, but suggests that the site was used for secondary burial and that this use would also explain the complete lack of stratigraphy in the upper level (Betancourt et al. 2008, 594–595).
